

TURKISH HAZELNUT SHIPMENT REPORT

February 2026

Seasonal

We hope to have the flower count results this week by Friday, but as it will be only flower counts, it may not have much effect on the market positively if the count is good. But, one very important thing about the flower counts is; If we have a flower, we have a chance to get some nuts, but if we have no flower, there is no chance to get any nuts.

Prices are very stable, with in-shell prices slightly higher as of today. Demand is comparatively better, but still very low, as you can see it in the shipment figures. We see more interest for the Q2 and Q3 periods. We will report the flower counts when available.
